Dr. Mozibur Raheman Khan delivered the welcome address and introduces the chief guest. Dr. A. Jainulabudeen proposed vote of thanks.

Mr.M. Mohamed Khiyasudden, a Cyber Security expert began his talk by thanking esteemed guests, faculty members, and students. He said ,It is an honor for me here today to discuss one of the most crucial topics in cyber security—Advanced Threats and Vulnerability Management. As technology evolves, so do the threats that challenge the security of organizations, governments, and individuals. Cybercriminals are using increasingly sophisticated methods to exploit vulnerabilities, making it essential for us to stay ahead in the cyber security landscape.

With AI, IoT, and cloud computing on the rise, cyber security must evolve. Organizations must adopt AI-driven security, Zero Trust Architecture, and Block chain-based security to stay resilient.

Cyber threats are inevitable, but with a proactive approach, continuous learning, and advanced security practices, we can effectively manage vulnerabilities and safeguard our digital world. Cyber security is not just an IT issue—it is a shared responsibility.

Around 90 Students from III-B.Sc & II-M.Sc. Computer Science and both the batches IMCA students were actively participated in this function and derived the benefits.
